Camp Savuti epitomizes the essence of a Botswana safari, nestled within Chobe National Park, along the arid Savuti Channel. Despite the channel's current dry state, its historical ebb and flow punctuate the region's dynamic landscape. The adjacent Savuti Marsh, sporadically nourished by the channel, reflects the area's geological past, characterized by tectonic shifts and a bygone inland lake. This environment fosters vibrant wildlife, offering thrilling game viewing experiences.

Accommodating 10 guests, Camp Savuti provides luxury tented accommodations, each featuring a private balcony and full bathroom. The revitalized guest area overlooks the Savuti Channel, boasting a spacious bar, dining area, pool, and deck. A separate dining space and firepit offer intimate settings for evening gatherings.

Embark on guided game drives aboard open safari vehicles, encountering predators and plains game in their natural habitat. Explore the expansive savannahs and grasslands, where the sounds of wildlife echo across the landscape. The camp's proximity to Pump Pan and the Linyanti region enhances wildlife sightings, with opportunities to observe rare species like African wild dogs. Whether during the dry or wet seasons, Camp Savuti promises unforgettable encounters with Botswana's diverse wildlife.

Discover tranquility in private Meru-style tents, elevated on wooden platforms and featuring secluded verandas. Each tent offers cozy comfort and modern amenities, ensuring a restful stay amidst the captivating wilderness. With abundant wildlife and diverse landscapes, Camp Savuti invites guests to immerse themselves in the beauty and wonder of Chobe National Park.
